LOCATION

Falkirk is a town situated within Scotland's Central Belt approximately 24 miles to the northeast of Glasgow and 26 miles west of Edinburgh. The town is ideally located in terms of road transport links with the M80/M9 Motorways in close proximity. The town is the administrative centre for Falkirk District and has a current population now estimated to be just short of 40,000 persons and a wider catchment population of circa 160,500 people within the Falkirk council area.

The subjects are located on the northern side of Manor Street, near the junction with Kerse Lane. Manor Street forms a good secondary retail pitch running parallel with the High Street. Surrounding occupiers are mixed in nature to include both residential and commercial premises.

DESCRIPTION

The subjects comprise modern office accommodation, arranged over the ground and first floor of a mid-terraced town centre building.

Externally, the subjects have a large glazed frontage that is ideal for business branding, as well as a disabled access ramp leading to the front entrance. Access to the property is via pedestrian disabled access doors, which leads into the ground floor open plan office space.

The subjects offer predominantly open plan accommodation on both floors, with each offering private offices, perimeter trunking, air conditioning, a lift, W/Cs and storage facilities. The ground floor also has disabled access bathroom facilities, and the first floor also has W/C facilities and a kitchen prep area.
